To Whom It May Concern,

I am writing in full support of Abdel's application for Leave to Remain in Ireland. I do so both as a private citizen and as the chairman of the Stradbally GAA football committee.

I first met Abdel last year when he rented a shed from a friend of mine in Stradbally and began using it as the base for his panel beating and general mechanic business. I got to know him better when he kindly offered to help me with the spraying of my campervan. Since then, I've witnessed firsthand the pride, dedication, and generosity that characterise Abdel's work and personality.

Abdel is extremely hardworking — often working in his shed until midnight, quietly focused on various projects. He is generous with his time and knowledge, always happy to help others and to share tools or advice when asked. He appears to be investing heavily in building a proper business, and he's quickly gaining a strong reputation locally for the quality of his work. He is never short of jobs, and word is spreading positively around Stradbally about both his skills and his work ethic.

But perhaps even more telling than his workmanship is Abdel's character. His shed is located beside a river, and when a pair of ducks showed up one day, he began feeding them. They now return every day, joined recently by a group of ducklings, and Abdel buys food especially for them. This kind of quiet kindness is typical of the man.

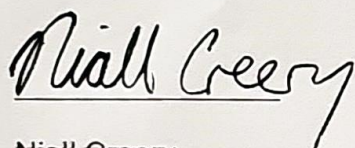

His shed has become something of a local hub — friends frequently stop by, and increasingly, Irish locals do too. It has become a small but meaningful space of social connection and community. I think that says a lot about the kind of person Abdel is.

He has recently joined the Stradbally Dads and Lads Gaelic football team and is hoping to make his debut in our match against Railyard on July 19th. Abdel brings a jovial spirit and a great sense of humour — he enjoys the craic and fits right in.

In our many conversations, it's clear that Abdel wants nothing more than to settle down in Laois, work with cars, and be part of the community here. I sincerely believe he has already made a strong start in doing just that.

I have no hesitation in recommending Abdel as someone who would continue to contribute positively to Irish society if granted the opportunity to remain. Please don't hesitate to contact me if further information is required.

Yours faithfully,

Chairman, Stradbally GAA Football Committee

To Whom It May Concern,

My name is Pat Deegan, and I own the shed that Abdel rents here in Stradbally. He's been working from there for a year now, doing panel beating and mechanic work.

From the very beginning, Abdel has been a sound and reliable tenant. He pays his rent on time, keeps the place clean, and is always respectful. But more than that, he's become a part of the local scene. He's in the shed nearly every day and often late into the evening, working away on cars or helping someone out with a job.

I've had plenty of chats with him and he's always friendly, polite, and decent. He's well liked in the area, and you'd often see people stopping by to visit or just to catch up with him. You can tell he's made good connections locally and is trying to build a proper life here.

I think Abdel is a genuinely good person who's trying his best to make a future for himself. I've no doubt he'll continue to contribute positively if given the chance to stay in Ireland.

Kind regards,

Pat Deegan

I welcome been asked to refer Abdelmohcene Belferat to whom it may concern. I play football on same team as man we call 'Abdul' and he has been a 'breath of fresh air' for us and to our community. We are called 'DAOS AND LAOS' and have a mixture of all different nationalities and religion and have appeared on R.T.E. 11V. Abdelmohcene is an intelligent man and wondered and asked immediately why he was the only one not been marked and didn't want special treatment. He is a very clean gentleman who gets along so well with everyone and he is so obliging and well mannered as well as being funny and witty. Last week he volunteered to come along with community volunteers as we brought barrels of water to the elderly and delivered dinners. The man is very truthful, decent and honest as well as being considerate. If a chore is needed done he will spring to do it to save an older team-mate the trouble.

It's nice to have got to know Abdel.
